Lumenova™ Seizes Top 3 Energy Star Positions in R20, BR30 and BR40 Categories

April 02, 2014, Toronto, ON – CRS Electronics Inc. (“CRS” or the “Company”), (TSX-V:LED), a developer and manufacturer of LED lighting products, today announced that its Lumenova™ lamps seized the Top 3 Energy Star Positions in R20, BR30 and BR40 Categories.

Lumenova™ - a CRS Electronics Company- released its Energy Star certified R20, BR30 and BR40 lamps. In total lumen output, each product occupies first, second and third positions.

"We surprised ourselves by testing this far ahead of the marketplace" said Travis Jones, President & CEO of CRS Electronics. "Scott Riesebosch, our Chief Technology Officer deserves a lot of credit. Customers have a plethora of choices, and we are delighted there are many who care how their LED lamps perform. We target customers who care about the operational efficiency and output of the LED systems they purchase, and we are gratified there are many who do. It's why our sales pipeline is growing at nearly a million dollars each week."

Lumenova™ is preparing to introduce A19, Candelabra and an LED solution for compact fluorescent lamps. "Delivering some of the highest output, efficacies and unique 2200K Kelvin temperature as part of our strategy across the portfolio. Our newest products which debut at Lightfair will adhere to our strategy and even further surpass the competition."

About CRS Electronics

CRS Electronics Inc. (TSX-V:LED), a Lighting Facts partner, is a leader in the emerging, rapidly-growing market of high efficiency light-emitting-diode (“LED”), or, solid state lighting (“SSL”).
